“Very great and informative training, I will definitely be sharing with my colleagues/community partners. Thank you, Timea, and your friends/colleagues for taking the time to put this training together and to share your experiences, that takes the utmost strength and resiliency.” - Police Officer, Toronto, Ontario

I found the training to be extremely educational and truly increased my knowledge and confidence if I were to encounter a human trafficking victim. I very much appreciated hearing about other victims' stories and watching their videos explaining their experiences. - Victim Services Employee

The Mindset of a Human Trafficker

Typically, human trafficking training opportunities explore vulnerabilities that lead to an individual being victimized by a trafficker; rarely do they focus on vulnerabilities from the perpetrator's perspective and how they become engaged as a trafficker. This training opportunity explores upstream prevention approaches that can intervene to support youth at risk of becoming a trafficker.

Can you see me now?

This is comprehensive training for front-line workers to understand the mindset of a Human Trafficked victim from the survivor's perspective—their mindset before they were trafficked, while being trafficked and after rescue. The training also offers raw but highly effective tools for front-line workers on how to support victims of trafficking during crisis court or transitional stages.
